It makes the hair rich, soft and glossy.
It prevents the hair turning gray and falling off.
It restores hair upon prematurely bald heads.

This is just what Lyon's Kathairon will do. It is pretty—it is cheap—durable. It is literally sold by the carload, and yet its almost incredible demand is daily increasing, until there is hardly a country store that does not keep it, or a family that does not use it.

THE HEART.

The heart—the heart, oh! prize it well
For it is slender made;
A cruel word, an angry look
May cause its bloom to fade.
We may not know what hidden grief
Lies deep within its core;
Then do not add despair to that
Which kindness may restore.

The heart—the heart—'tis like a rose
That blooms and fades from sight;
Affection's tear dropp'd in its soul
Will make it glow more bright.
But if we leave its tender growth
Its life will soon be flown;
Then oh! be careful of the heart
That you would make your own.

The heart—the heart—the throne where life
Holds its majestic seat—
Where passion reigns, and loving thoughts
Oft find a firm retreat.
Oh! be you ever kind to it—
For we may easy wake
A joyful strain within its zone,
Or bid its fibers break.

HELEN CRAIG.

BY MERIE M.

"Thank you. No! when I was in Philadelphia, last winter, I answered another the question that you, Maurice Alden, are asking me! Consequently, I have a neat little contract to fulfill, in an amazing short length of time! And even if I were a bird, it would be silly business to sing such a song as that, to me! How stupid you are, Mr, Alden!" and the girlish laugh of Helen Craig rang out musically through the great room.

"Now, Helen Craig," answered the gentleman, "That old song you ridicule, was first sung in the garden of Eden, and the older that 'I love you!' grows, the dearer it is. And, as to your thinking I'm stupid, you know, Helen, that's 'all bosh!' Stupid! my little girl!" And he laughed, morrily, as he puffed away at his cigar, sending the smoke curling about his head, in tiny clouds.

"Why, little Helen, I thought you wanted to marry me!" remarked Maurice Alden, with a self satisfied look.

Miss Craig's pretty white face and pink cheeks, grew crimson, at the gentleman's intimation of her desire, to sustain a nearer relationship. Her cheeks glowing with an angry flush, her brown eyes shadowed with tears, she arose from the sofa, and stood beside Alden.

"Well, Helen, little girl, come to tell me you've reconsidered that decision?"

"No, Mr. Alden! I have come to tell you I did not expect an insult from the brother of my friend Mara Alden."

"Nor did I come here to seek a proposal. If not before, be just to me now."

A troubled look come in Maurice Alden's grey eyes, as he questioned himself, "have I played badly, and lost the prize?" Why, since Helen's days of little girlhood—when she was a tiny one, he had loved her! Must he lose her, now? The thought was full of bitterness, of anguish. Down upon the marble table, he laid the unfinished cigar, looking repentant enough, now.

Helen tenderly questioned Maurice Alden. "Is it true that you do hate me? That you do love some one else, my little Helen!" And the low, sad tones were full of sorrow.

Tears trembled upon Helen Craig's dark lashes, and sobs come swelling up the delicate throat. Had she realized this great love, when it was too late. She wept as she acknowledged its truth. But, in sight of God and the angels, she was already Royer Heade's wife, for two weeks would find them united.

"You don't hate me, then, Helen." and the grey eyes, for a moment, looked roguish.

With a pained look upon the now pallid face, she told him how she, Helen Craig, would ere long wear the "orange blossoms" for another. We turn aside from the picture. It is such as humanity, daily, aye, hourly, are living.

There is crape upon the door of a palatial mansion up town. Muffled is every bell. Sorrow is here! Enter. How dark! How gloomy! Crape upon the pictures, the mirrors, crape everywhere.

The husband sits mourning in his study—for it was there she so often sat. She that laid so quiet, so still, robed for the tomb. Her chair, that she had playfully insisted was better than any his study afforded, was brought hither, as she would tap lightly at the door, her lips wreathed in smiles that were forced there—lest the knowledge of her unhappiness, would make him, too, miserable. She grew more weary, and God gave her rest.

Every breath is laden with anguish, to Royer Heade. How elegant in form, feature and intellect is he. Amongst the locks of glossy black hair, is here and there a thread of silver.

Stricken! How deeply! Heaven help him! All life held dear to him, shivered at one blow! Why was he, too, not called? He sighs and mourns as only a strong man can, and asks himself why. Only two short years of happiness, since he married Helen Craig.

And Helen, pause a moment,—look tenderly in the wan face—then ask if there has been no sorrow here. The pale hands are folded meekly over the bosom—a cross of white buds upon the still heart, as is befitting.

She, Helen, was his idol, and now, in this great sorrow that shadows Royer Heade's life, he knows no other God.

Maurice Alden, too, loved little Helen, and the thought of the cloud that hovered over their lives, was full of anguish. A vessel went down in the angry, seething sea, and all on board were lost. Maurice was one of that vessel, and we trust, is now in the New Jerusalem.

Billiousness.

With a greater amount of bile in the blood than is natural, the result is that the eyes and the skin begin to wear a yellow appearance, various other symptoms manifest themselves, according to the temperament, habits, and peculiarities of the individual; one has sick headache; another complains of want of appetite, sometimes loathing the very appearance of food; a third has cold feet and hands: a fourth has chilly sensations, involving the whole body, or running up and down the back; a fifth is costive; women become hysterical, and laugh, cry, or talk, while men are moody, peevish, or morose. Bile is naturally of a bright yellow color, but as a man becomes more bilious it grows darker, and is at length as black as tar, causing a state of mind which the old Romans called attrability, attra meaning black; a scowl is on the countenance, and the person is ill-natured and fretful, finding fault with everybody and everything; hence, when a man is cross he is bilious, and ought to be pitied, and at the same time be made to take an emetic.

The ill-natured are never well; they are "bilious," the system is clogged, the machinery does not work well, and both mind and body are disordered. The safest and best method of getting rid of biliousness is steady work in the open air for six or eight hours every day, working or exercising to the extent of keeping up a gentle moisture on the skin. This moisture conveys the bile away out of the system. The same result will be accomplished, but not so well, by a good steam bath, or by wrapping up in bed, drinking hot teas, thus "getting up a perspiration;" but the atmosphere of the room should be pure, and the diet for several days should consist of coarse bread and fruits. Medicines which "act on the liver" will do the same thing, but they should be advised by the physician, when other means have failed.

The office of the liver is to withdraw the bile from the blood. It is the largest workshop of the body and is at the right side, about the lower edge of the ribs. When it does not do its work it is said to be torpid,—asleep—and medicines are given to stimulate it, awake it up, make it act, work faster than common, so as to throw off the excess of bile. When it does not withdraw or separate the bile from the blood the skin grows "yellow jaundice." When it separates the bile from the blood, but retains it within itself, constipation ensues, appetite is lost, spirits become despondent, and the person is languid, lazy, fretful, and irritable. The liver is in a sense like a sponge, and the bile may be pressed out of it as water out of a sponge, by pressing the ball of the hand over the region of the liver downwards, from the hip to "pit of stomach," two or three minutes at a time, several times a day. This is a good remedy in dyspepsia, and also relieves the stomach of wind, giving immediate and grateful relief sometimes.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Stories of the late German War.

The German press still continues to retail stories of the late war. A contributor to a Prague journal gives the following to prove that shrewd Mayors are still living. As the Prussian troops entered one of the larger towns of Bohemia, they were amazed at the desolate appearance of the streets, and especially at the rows of solemn black coffins at the town gates and other places.

Having marched his troops to the public square the Prussian general inquired grimly of the Mayor what the coffins meant.

To which the latter replied with great coolness:

"Nothing—only the cholera is raging here terribly. It is in almost every house, and the dead come so fast that we have to keep the coffins ready for the poor people."

"Hum!" quoth the General; that'll do. Forwaerts—forward, march!"

And the Prussian regiment fled at double-quick from the angel of death; nor did they feel safe until in the next town.

It is said, however, that the Mayor must have been mistaken, as the medical report for this week made no mention of cholera in the town.

Lately in Berlin, says a traveler, I met with an old German whom I had formerly known in America. To my amazement he had taken unto himself a buxom Suavian wife.

"Well, old fellow," said the traveller, "how under the sun come you to be married?"

"Oh, why, that's simple enough," was the reply; "my wife hadn't any husband, and I hadn't any wife, and so we married one another."

Not long since, in Saxony, a peasant appeared before a judge to make a charge. The judge being fully persuaded that the man was about to commit perjury, and bring a false charge for the sake of injuring his neighbor, tried in vain to make him by all manner of representations of future punishment and Christian laws to desist from his purpose. Finding it to be of no avail, he suddenly exclaimed, turning to his clerk:

"Well, then, open the window!"

"What shall I do that for, when it's so bitter cold?" replied he.

"Why—because if this fellow swears a false oath the devil will come and fly away with him, certainly—and I don't want to have my windows broken for such a good-for-nothing scoundrel!"

The peasant looked awed at the judge—the judge looked solemnly at the peasant—the peasant looked at the open window—shuddered—put on his hat, took his cane, and bidding the judge good morning, took his departure.

A Child Eaten by Snakes.

In the early part of the month of August last, a girl named Eliza Drummond, about 11 years of age, whose parents live near West Monroe, in this county, left home one morning for the purpose of picking berries, and never since returned. The most diligent search was made for her by the parents and neighbors, but no traces could be found. The event, which created a profound sensation at the time, had almost passed from the minds of all, save the stricken parents, when it was painfully recalled by a recent occurrence. On Tuesday last, five or six lads went out hunting in the vicinity, and during the day come upon a spot where a large number of black snakes were discovered and killed.

The appearance of the reptiles in such numbers and at this season of the year was considered remarkable, and it was suggested by one of the party that a breeding den must be somewhere near. A search was immediately commenced, which resulted in a manner far different from their expectations.

In the side of a little hill near the edge of a swamp, was found a sort of opening, which in the summer was concealed by tall grass and bushes. In this opening was found a human skeleton, from which every particle of flesh had been taken. The bones were as white as ivory, and all perfect. Near by was a tin pail in a rusted condition, and a tin cup. The boys were terribly frightened, and gave the alarm. The remains were taken from the mouth of the den, and an examination showed that the place had been, and probably now was, a breeding place for black snakes. The boldest hesitated to enter. The entrance, which was large enough for the admission of a man's body, grew smaller and tendered downward. Lighted balls of hay, soaked in kerosene, were thrown into the cavity, and in less than fifteen minutes eighty-two snakes, ranging in length from one and a half to four feet, were killed.

The pail and cup were recognized by Mr. and Mrs. Drummond as those taken by their child when she went away for the last time, physicians pronounced the remains those of a female child, and there can be no doubt but that the poor little girl, while picking berries in the vicinity of the spot, become tired, seated herself in the shade of the opening to this horrid den, was attacked by the reptiles in numbers and killed. The discovery has shocked the whole community.—Oswego (N. Y.) Palladium.

"TOO MUCH DITTO."—In a small village in New England lived an old chap, who, though very wealthy, did not possess a good education, and also did not his wife. He purchased most of his household goods at a dry goods and grocery store in the village, and at the end of the year the bill was presented for payment. On one occasion in looking it over, he observed the word "ditto" occurred frequently. On reaching home he said to his wife:

"What have you been doing with so much ditto this year?" showing her how it stood on the bill. "I haven't bought any, and what have you been doing with so much?"

"I haven't had a bit," she replied.

"You must have had it," he returned, "for M. always deals honestly by me, and here it is on the bill. You can see for yourself."

"I don't care if it is; I haven't had any, and M. has cheated you; I always said he would."

"Well, then I must see about it," he replied. So he trudged back to the store.

"Look here, M., what do you mean by charging me with so much ditto? I haven't had any and my wife says she hasn't."

"Yes," said he, "I have found out that I was a fool, and you was a ditto."

☞The following story is told of a Yankee captain and his mate: Whenever there was a plum pudding made, by the captain's orders, all the plums were put into one end of it, and that placed next to the captain, who, after helping himself, passed it to the mate, who never found any plums in his part of it. Well, after this game had been played for some time, the mate prevailed on the steward to place the end which had no plums in it next to captain. The captain no sooner saw the pudding than he discovered he had the wrong end of it. Picking up the dish, and turning it in his hands, as if merely for examining the china, he said, "this dish cost me two shillings in Liverpool," and put it down again as though without design, with the plum end next to himself. "Is it possible?" said the mate, taking up the dish; "I shouldn't suppose it was worth more than a shilling," and, as if in perfect innocence, he put down the dish with the plum end next to himself. The captain looked at the mate, the mate looked at the captain. The captain laughed, the mate laughed, "you've found me out, so we'll just cut the pudding legthwise this time, and have the plums fairly distributed hereafter."

☞"Pa, didn't you whip me for biting Tommy?"

"Yes, my child; you hurt him very much."

"Well, then, pa, you ought to whip mamma's music teacher, too, for he bit mamma right in the mouth, and I know it hurt, because she put her arms around his neck and tried to choke him."

Charters by the Court.

The following Act has passed both branches of the Legislature and received the signature of the Governor. As will be seen, it enlarges the jurisdiction of the Courts of Common Pleas, relative to granting charters of incorporation, and confirming those heretofore granted:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by authority of the same, That from and after the passage of this act the several courts of common pleas of this Commonwealth shall have power and authority to grant charters of incorporation in all cases in which the same is authorized to be granted, under existing laws, by the Supreme Court of this Commonwealth; and the associations hereafter incorporated, under the laws of this Commonwealth, may be authorized to hold real estate to an amount, the clear yearly value of income whereof shall not exceed twenty thousand dollars; and all laws, and parts of laws, inconsistent herewith, be and the same are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. That all charters of incorporation which have heretofore been granted by any of said courts of common pleas, in cases wherein the said Supreme Court only had power and authority to grant the same, be and the same are hereby validated and made of the same force and effect as if the same had been granted in pursuance of authority conferred upon said courts of common pleas.

SEC. 3. That the said courts of common pleas shall have power and authority to grant charters of incorporation, in all cases wherein any number of persons, citizens of this Commonwealth, are associated for the purpose of insuring horses, cattle and other live stock, against loss by death, from disease or accident, or from being stolen; and, also, to grant charters of incorporation to water and hook and ladder companies, building associations, musical clubs or associations, teachers' institutes or associations, hotel companies, skating park associations, and clubs for the advancement of athletic sports, including base ball clubs, and barge and fishing clubs, and in granting such charters of incorporation, the said courts shall have power to incorporate, by the same form of proceeding, fire insurance companies; which said companies, when so incorporated, shall have all the rights, powers and privileges, and be subject to all the restrictions and provisions of the general law regulating fire insurance companies approved April second, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-six, and the several supplements thereto.

BEAUTIFUL RESIGNATION.—The widow of the lost mate of the Ohio steamer General Lytle, which was burned a few days ago, is a woman of the true Christian stamp, full of faith. She writes the story of her sorrow to her friends who give her love's sympathy. The sweet submission to God, and her resignation under the bereaving dispensation, is beautiful indeed. In affliction and grief the excellency of religion is manifest.

"There were seven others made widows," she said, after a short pause.—"One of these, living in Cincinnati, when suddenly told of the death of her husband, looked up a moment in utter despair, and fell dead without a struggle. She had no children; I have five. When my husband's body was brought to my little desolate home, two weeks ago, I said in my anguish, to a neighbor who had come in, 'I feel as if everything would go into the grave with him.' My little Freddy, nine years old, looked up and said, 'Mother, you must not forget that we have God still; He will take care of us.' Oh,' said she, "how he comforted me! If it were not for the hopes which religion brings I do not think I could live."

MIXING BABIES.—An Alliance correspondent of the Canton (O.) Repository relates the following: Some days ago there was a dancing party given for the benefit of the Fenians, on the out-skirts of town, and several of the ladies present had little babies, whose noisy perversity required too much attention to allow their ma's to enjoy the "hop." A number of gallant young men volunteered to guard the infantry while the ladies engaged in the "break down." No sooner had the mothers left their cherubs in the hands of the mischievous wretches, than they stripped the darlings, changed their clothes, giving the apparel of one to another. The dance over, the mothers each took, as she thought, her own baby, and hurriedly left the scene of gaieties and started to their homes seven miles apart, being far on the way before the "peep-o'-day." On the following day there was a tremendous row in the settlement. Mothers discovered that a single night had changed the sex of their babies, and then commenced some of the tallest female pedestrianism. Living miles apart, it required two days to unmix the little cherubs, and will require as many weeks to restore the mothers to their natural sweet dispositions.

Reformation of William Wirt.

The distinguished William Wirt, within six or eight months after his first marriage, became addicted to intemperance, the effect of which operated strongly on the mind and health of his wife, and in a few months more she was numbered with the dead. Her death led him to leave the country where he resided, and he moved to Richmond, where he rose to distinction. But his habits hung about and occasionally he was found with a jolly and frolicsome spirits and bacchanalian revelry. His true friends expostulated with him to convince him of the injury he was doing himself. But he persisted. His practice began to fall off and many looked on him was on the sure road to ruin. He was advised to get married, with a view of correcting his habits. This he consented to do if the right person offered. He accordingly paid his address to Miss Gamble. After some month's attention he asked her hand in marriage; she replied—Mr. Wirt I have been well aware of your attentions for some time back, and should have given you to understand that your visits and attentions were not acceptable, had I not reciprocated the affection which you evinced for me. But I cannot yield my assent until you make a pledge never to taste, touch or handle any intoxicating drinks! This reply to Wirt was as unexpected as it was novel. His reply was that he considered the proposition as a bar to all further consideration on the subject, and he left her. Her course towards him was the same as ever—his resentment and neglect. In the course of a few weeks he went again and solicited her hand. But her reply was, her mind was made up. He became indignant, and regarded the terms she proposed as insulting to his honor; and vowed it should be the last meeting they should ever have. He took to drinking worse and worse, and seemed to run headlong to ruin.

One day, while laying in the outskirts of the city, near a little grocery, or grog shop, dead drunk, a young lady, whom it is not necessary to name, was passing that way to her home, not far off, and beheld him with his face upturned to the rays of the scorching sun. She took her handkerchief with her own name marked upon it, and placed it over his face. After he had remained in that way some hours, he awakened, and his thirst being so great, he went into the grog shop to get a drink, when he discovered the handkerchief, at which he looked, and the name was on it. After pausing a few minutes, he exclaimed—"Great God! who left this with me! Who placed this on my face?' No one knew. He dropped the glass exclaiming—'enough! enough! He retired instantly from the store, forgetting the thirst, but not his debauch, the handkerchief, or the lady, vowing, if God gave him strength, never to touch, taste, or handle intoxicating drinks.

To meet Miss G., was the hardest effort of his life. If he met her in her carriage, or on foot, he popped round the corner. She at last addressed him a note under her own hand inviting him to her house, which he finally gathered courage to accept. He told her if she still bore affection for him, he would agree to her own terms. Her reply was: "My conditions are now what they ever have been."

They were soon married, and from that day he kept his word, and his affairs brightened, while honors, and glory gathered thick upon his brow. His name has been enrolled high in the temple of fame, while his deeds, his patriotism and renown, live after him with imperishable lustre. How many noble minds might the young ladies save, if they would follow the example of Miss G., the friend of humanity, of her country, and the relative of Lafayette.

ONE ANSWER TOO MUCH.—When Dr. Dodge an electric physician, was lecturing through this State on the evil of tea and coffee, he happened to meet one morning at the breakfast table a witty son of Erin, of the better class. Conversation turned to the doctor's favorite subject, and he addressed our friend as follows:

"Well," said the Doctor "if I convince you that they are injurious to your health, will you abstain from their use?"

"Sure and I will, sir?"

"How often do you use coffee and tea," asked the Doctor.

"Morning and night, sir."

"Well," said the doctor, "do you ever experience a slight dizziness of the brain upon going to bed?"

"Yes, indeed I do," replied Erin.

"And a sharp pain through the temples, in and about the eyes, in the morning?" again asked the doctor.

"Troth I do so."

"Well," said the doctor, with an air of confidence and assurance in his manner, "that is the tea and coffee."

"Is it indade? faith an' I'm thankful, I always thought it was the whiskey did that same."

The company roared with laughter, and the doctor quietly retired.

☞Judge———, who is now a very able Judge of the Supreme Court of one of the great States of this Union, when he first "came to the bar," was a very blundering speaker. On one occasion, when he was trying a case of replevin, involving the right of property to a lot of hogs, he addressed the jury as follows:

"Gentlemen of the jury, there were just twenty four hogs in that drove—just twenty-four, gentlemen, exactly twice as many as there are in that jury box!" The effect can be imagined.

Ducks lay eggs; geese lay wagers.

"I know of no mode in which a loyal citizen may so well demonstrate his devotion to his country as by sustaining the Flag the Constitution and the Union, under all circumstances, and UNDER EVERY ADMINISTRATION REGARDLESS OF PARTY POLITICS, AGAINST ALL ASSAILANTS, AT HOME AND ABROAD."—STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS.

THE next Republican State Convention will be held at Williamsport, on the 26th of June next. A candidate for Supreme Judge will be nominated.

☞The number of aspirants for the next Presidency are increasing. Theodore Tilton found a dozen or twenty on his late visit to Washington; they were so plenty, indeed, he did not think it worth while to count them very accurately.

HON. James L. Graham of Allegheny county was elected Speaker of the Senate previous to adjournment. Should Gov. Geary die, Mr. Graham will take his place until the office could be filled by election. Office-holders don't often die.

NOMINATIONS AND REJECTIONS.—Gen. John Ross of Mifflin county, was, a few days since, nominated by the President for Revenue Collector of this District, and rejected by the Senate. The office is still being filled by Rev. James C. Clarke, a most excellent officer. Why not nominate and confirm him? Who objects?

There has been no nomination to fill our post office since the rejection of Col. John S. Miller.

The Senate is afraid to adjourn for fear the President will fill vacancies with his friends.

OUR LEGISLATURE ADJOURNED.—Our State Legislature has adjourned. The appropriation bill, after being cut down by the Senate some three or four hundred thousand dollars was finally presented to the Governor for his signature. The Republican press have but little to say of the honesty of the body, a few honorable exceptions of course. Many of the distinguished legislators have gone home, it is hoped never to return again. They will discover that the people are not blind to corruptions, no matter what the efforts may have been to pull the wool over their eyes.

The Manhood Suffrage Bill in Ohio.

The following is the Manhood Suffrage Bill, as passed by both branches of the Ohio Legislature:—

That it be and is hereby proposed to the electors of this State to vote at the next annual October election upon the approval or rejection of the following amendment, as a substitute for the first section of the fifth article of the Constitution of this State, to wit:

"Every male citizen of the United States of the age of twenty-one years, who shall have been a resident of the State next preceding the election, and of the township or ward in which he resides, such time as may be provided by law, except such persons as have borne arms in support of any insurrection or rebellion against the Government of the United States, or have fled from their places of residence to avoid being drafted into the military service thereof; or have deserted the military or naval service of said Government in time of war, and have not subsequently been honorably discharged from the same, shall have the qualifications of an elector and be entitled to vote at all elections."

THE INSANITY OF OFFICE HUNTING.—Greeley has some sound philosophy on this subject in the Tribune of the 1st instant, which we give to our readers. He says:

Some of our readers will undoubtedly remember the menagerie man's description of an ambitious animal—"He can't live in the water and he dies on land;" and this is precisely the purgatorial position of a great many seekers for office in Washington. If the President smiles upon them, the Senate frowns; if they are distasteful to the White House, there can be no confirmation—and thus their money is expended and their patience exhausted, while the rays of hope vouchsafed to them are cold and scanty.

Under such distracting circumstances, sensible men would pack their valises, pay their tavern bills if possible, and return to their sweet homes without delay. Half the time and money, and ingenuity, often expended in fishing and fighting for a place of small perquisites, and less honor, would set these deluded gentlemen up in business, and keep them profitably going afterward. But there is a distemper which men catch in lobbies and caucus rooms, which, without being kind enough speedily to kill, makes fools of them and sends them upon a feverish chase after wild geese for the rest of their days.

If anything could cure them it would be the present dead-lock in Washington; but they are long past all chance of recovery. The lesson which they afford, we hope, will not be lost upon our youthful and more unsophisticated readers. A stern resolution at twenty-one, never to seek for place, but to wait for place to seek him, will be money in the pocket of any young man wise enough to make and firm enough to keep the wholesome vow.

The Democratic members of the Pennsylvania Legislature caused a salute to be fired over the Connecticut election from the same guns which thundered over the Radical victory last April, and the Radical members of the Legislature attribute their signal defeat to the efforts of Congress to force negro suffrage upon the Northern States.

The New Jury Law.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, &c., That on the general election to be held on the second Tuesday of October, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and tri-annually thereafter, at such election, the qualified electors of the several counties of this Commonwealth shall elect, in the manner now provided by law for the election of other county officers, two sober, intelligent and judicious persons to serve as jury commissioners, in each of said counties, for the period of three years ensuing their election; but the same person or persons shall not be eligible for re-election more than once in any period of six years: Provided, That each of said qualified electors shall vote for one person only as jury commissioner, and the two persons having the greatest number of votes for jury commissioner shall be duly elected jury commissioners for such county.

SEC. 2. It shall be the duty of said jury commissioners to meet at the seat of justice of the respective counties, at least thirty days before the first term of the court of common pleas, in every year and thereupon proceed, with due diligence, to select from the whole male taxable citizens of the respective county at large, a number, such as at the term of the court, of pleas next preceding shall, by the said court, be designated, of sober, intelligent and judicious persons, to serve as jurors in the several courts of such county, during that year; and if the said commissioners cannot agree upon the names of the persons to be selected by them as jurors, they shall proceed as follows: Each of the commissioners shall make a list containing the names of one-half of the requisite number of persons, and ten per centum in addition thereto, and the proper number shall be obtained by each of said commissioners striking from the list of furnished by the other, a number equal to the said addition; and the names not stricken out shall be the selection of the names of jurors, and the said jury commissioners shall, in the mode and manner now directed by law, place the names of persons so selected in the proper jury wheel, and the said jury wheel locked, as now required by law, shall remain in the custody of the said jury commissioners and the keys thereof in the custody of said county.

SEC. 3. The said jury commissioners and the Sheriff of the respective county, or any two of them, shall draw from the proper jury wheel panels of jurors, as grand jurors of the proper county, and as petit and traverse jurors, for the trial of issues in fact which may be taken in any action in any of the courts, civil and criminal, in the several counties aforesaid, in the manner now practiced and allowed; but before the said jury commissioners and sheriff shall proceed to select or draw jurors in the manner aforesaid, they shall severally take the oath or affirmation now prescribed by law to be taken by the sheriff and county commissioners before selecting and drawing jurors.

SEC. 4. That so much of any act or acts of Assembly of this Commonwealth, as makes it the duty of the sheriff and county commissioners of any of said counties to select and draw jurors, shall be repealed, and cease to have any force or effect from and after the first day of December next, Anno Domini one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven: Provided, That all acts, and parts of acts of Assembly, now in force, in relation to the custody, sealing and unsealing, locking and opening of the jury wheel of the respective county, and all acts and parts of acts of Assembly, now in force, imposing any penalty or punishment on the sheriff and county commissioners, or either of them, for anything done or omitted by them in relation to the keeping, locking, opening, sealing or breaking the seal of any jury wheel, or in relation to the selection or drawing of jurors, shall be taken, deemed and held to apply to the said jury commissioners and sheriff.

SEC. 5. Each of said jury commissioners shall be allowed and paid out of the respective county treasury two dollars and fifty cents per day, and four cents per mile, circular, from the residence of the commissioners to the court house.

SEC. 6. It shall be the duty of each of said jury commissioners to take upon himself and discharge the duties of his said office, under a penalty of one hundred dollers for each and every neglect or refusal to attend the same, to be sued for and recovered before any justice of the peace of the proper county, as debts of like amount are now by law recoverable, ten dollars of which shall go to the person suing and the residue to be paid by the said justice to the treasurer of the respective county for the use of the same.

SEC. 7. In case of the inability of either or both of the said jury commissioners, by sickness or death, or other unavoidable causes, to discharge the duties of said office, or in case of neglect or refusal to serve thereon, it shall be the duty of the president judge in such county, wherein said vacancy may have occurred, to appoint a suitable person or persons, as the case may be, possessing the qualifications aforesaid, to perform the duties of said office during such vacancy, and such person or persons, after having complied with the requirements of the third section of this act, shall proceed to discharge the duties of said office the same as if elected by the people, until the next general election, when the people shall elect a commissioner in lieu thereof.

☞One phase in New York life is illustrated by a curious little affair which took place up town recently. It seems that a gentleman, well known in society, gave a large dinner party, to which he invited both ladies and gentlemen. The dinner was served in the most elegant style, the table cloth, we are told, being white velvet, and the china, glass and silver of the most magnificent description. Soup was served, then fish, and just as the waiters were preparing to bring on the third course, and while the host was relating a very interesting story, in which he was the hero—the folding doors were suddenly thrown open, and a man walked in, and, advancing to the host, laid his hand on his shoulder, and said, in a voice loud enough for all to hear, "I am the sheriff, sir, and have a warrant for your arrest"

Pennsylvania Legislature.

Harrisburg, April 8.—Three more days, and the Pennsylvania legislature of 1867 will belong to the past. On Thursday next at high noon, the gay roosters will be dismissed by their respective presiding officers, and each will wend his way, rather in sorrow than in anger, to his own barn-yard. It will be a sad and solemn scene, for never before did such a congregation of roosters meet and part. They are busy exchanging photographs with each other, and most of them will bear with them "pictures" of the venerable capitol—the place that once knew them but will henceforth know them no more forever.

To one principle this legislature has been faithful. It has been inconsistent in defying the wishes of the people on every important question. In vain did the press, the organ of the people, ask for the people the poor privilege of deciding for themselves whether they want constitutional reform. It was enough to know that it was desired, and it had no show whatever. Had the question of a convention been submitted to the people, they would have called one by not less than one hundred thousand majority, and by another year the disgrace of debauched legislatures, such as the one about to close, would have ended; but the people had no agents here to buy reform, and it fell to the ground. Mark how earnestly the candidates of both parties in all sections of the State, will voluntarily pledge themselves, in the next campaign, to favor a call for a convention. No man will dare to say in any district, that he will deny to the people the right to say whether they want a convention or not, and no matter who wins, a convention will be had and substantial reform will be attained. Let no man suppose for a moment that the debauchery that rules here is confined to any party. It has been loss conspicuous in the Democratic party because it has been in a political minority, but its thinned ranks are just as thoroughly corrupted as the other side. To fly from one party to the other therefore, is simply to invite the old regime of pollution back with the additional evil of modern Democratic principle. Let the Republicans maintain their organization intact, but let them see that no unworthy nominations are made, and if made, let them be stricken down regardless of consequences. Let the people be inflexible in demanding who will return the question of reform back to the fountain of power, to be exercised through a convention, and reform will come with beneficent fruits, while if it is hoped for through amendments to be proposed by the legislature, it will be but a mockery and a fraud. The people have the matter in their own hands, and they can restore the government to purity if they will. Shall it not be done?

The Free Railroad struggle in the House, on Wednesday evening, was a novelty in its way. Everybody professed to be for a free railroad law, and for forty six voted for one sort of a law while 36 voted for a different one, just as if it made any difference, at this late day, what the House might do in the matter. If the House had passed the Senate bill, it would have been declared a cheat, and if it had passed the defeated bill of the Senate, the fight would end in a disagreement between the two houses and no legislation at all. It seems to me that between these two upper and nether millstones the free railroad policy has about as much chance as a man would have to scale Niagara in a ladies work basket.

NO CONGRESS THIS SUMMER.—Senators will separate this week, tired of the Capital, and with the understanding, as there was in the House of Representatives last month, that there will be no session before December. In the meantime, the Southern Conventions will be held, and from all appearances, so perfectly subdued and suffering are the people of the South, the majority in these Conventions will conform to the laws of Congress. As for impeachment, we regard it as practically over. The Judiciary Committee will sit, hear evidence, deliberate, and in time report, but as there is no plea upon which the President can, even upon party grounds, plausibly be impeached, the end of the solemn farce will come sooner than was at one time expected. This for 1867. In 1868, after the first six months, the attention of the people will be given to Mr. Johnson's successor. The nomination of May of June will be followed by the summor and autumn campaign, and so practically end all that belongs to the noise and passion of long-threatened impeachment.—New York Express.

The Supreme Court was not in session to day, but the judges held their usual conference in cases already submitted. It is said that on Monday, unless the counsel desire more time for argument, a decision will be rendered refusing the motion to file a bill for an injunction to prohibit the enforcement of the Reconstruction Act in Mississippi, on the ground that the court has not original jurisdiction.

A woman has been arrested in Chicago for throwing one living child belonging to a neighbor down an out house, and another in a barrel of water, covered with a cake of ice. She is represented as a low, degraded woman, aged about fifty years, and has long been a terror to the neighborhood. The child thrown in the out house made its way out, but the other died.

Trouble is anticipated between Northern Germany and France. Count Bismarck has sent an energetic note to Paris, demanding of the Emperor Napoleon his reasons for arming. He says Prussia holds France responsible for the consequences of such a step, and asks the instant cessation of warlike preparations.

The annual report of the New York Methodist Book Concern shows the profits to be over $36,000. The payments for Bishops' salaries, traveling expenses, &c., $27,444. The total assets of the Concern are $682,000, and it owes $126,675.

A panic occurred in the Philadelphia schools over a rumor that colored children were to be admitted—teachers being informed that if such be the fact their white pupils would withdraw.

The New Territory.

Our new territorial acquisition, fronting on the Pacific and Arctic Oceans, can now be considered on its merits. For better or for worse, we have now got Russian America. The Senate, which had the best opportunities for learning all that is known about its value, decided all but unanimously for its acquisition. Radical joined hands with Democrat, New England with Kentucky and California, to secure the domain which our diplomacy had placed within grasp. The spectacle was a pleasant one; for it was the first occasion during many years on which men of all parties acted together for a national and patriotic object.

We do not, by any means, imagine that Sitka, Knitchpek, Behring, or whatever the new Territory may be called, will prove, even under American enterprise, the most inviting portion of the American Union. Even Mr. Seward is not accused of holding out any such prospect. But we believe it is quite as wide of the mark to represent the entire country as worthless. Those who have talked this way have done so either from ignorance or merely from opposition to the acquisition because it was brought about by the administration. The sources of knowledge about the country were new, and not of recent date. We had some items from books of travel, some notes in the cyclopedias, and we gathered a few facts from American explorers, navigators, or adventurers drifted northward from our Pacific territories within the last twenty years. Limited as all these were, they were yet sufficient to show that the Russian American possessions had sources of prosperity which Russia had never developed, and moreover, had a value to us which they never could have to the Russian government. The vast distances which separated them from the centres of Russian population and enterprise, and the more inviting field open to Russians in other quarters, caused them to be neglected by all but a few traders, who settled mostly on the islands of the coast. But that the fisheries have proved valuable to them, and will prove far more so to us; that the great supplies of lumber can be made available in a region where it is of the uttermost importance; that the fur trade has been carried on to a large extent, and yet opens up great opportunities; that minerals and ores abound and can be worked to advantage; that the commercial value of the Aleutian Islands is of prime consequence to our opening oriental trade; these are matters which are no more open to dispute than existence of the territory itself. Our fellow citizens of the Pacific were quick to apprehend the bearing of these things on their future prospects, and have not been slow in letting the Senate know their opinion as to its duty in the premises.

It will doubtless take us a year or two to learn much more than we now know about this important and distant territorial acquisition; but we confidently believe that time will justify the wisdom of President Johnson's administration in making the treaty.—N. Y. Times.

—Monday last was the anniversary of President Lincoln's death. It was made a day of fasting in Illinois State.

—The disease called hollow-horn has broken out among the cattle in different portions of this county, and valuable cows have been lost by it.

—The store of Mrs. Anna Enchelmayer, in Perrysville, Juniata county, was robbed of goods valued at about three hundred dollars.

—A. W. Benedict, Esq., Chief Clerk of the House, was presented with an ornamented clock by the members before adjournment, on Thursday last.

—Court has been pretty well attended by our country people, but not as well as usual for this season. We feel thankful to those who have paid up.

—The base ball season has commenced in earnest. We understand the Social will be again in the field. We hope them better luck this year than last.

—The citizens of Altoona town have again voted against the question of a city. We don't suppose they will have another chance for a little while at least.

—Michael Barr has been convicted in the Perry county court of being concerned in the robbery of Wistar's safe, at Duncannon, and sentenced to the Penitentiary for three years.

—The first ice cream of the season made its appearance in this place and then as suddenly disappeared. Those with the "sweet tooth" witnessed its disappearance from a very convenient standpoint.

—The tenth Lodge of Good Templars in this county was instituted at Shirleysburg on Friday evening last. There will be another shortly at Waterstreet. The Lodge in this place is still progressing, and may it ever.

—Our citizens generally are still filled with the spirit of improvement, and dwellings, fences, etc., are being rejuvenated, and present a healthful appearance. This is what we like to see, and we hope no one will say aught against it.

—A young man named Holmes, of Greensburg, Westmoreland county, killed a boy with a brick, which he was using as a weight when jumping. The brick slipped out of his hand and struck the boy on the head, killing him almost instantly. Boys, take warning.

—The whole town of Stormstown, in Half-moon valley, Centre county, was consumed by fire on Sunday the 7th inst. It consisted of fourteen houses, including three stores and two hotels. The fire broke out near an out oven. The day being very windy the flames soon spread.

—The Bedford Inquirer says: Certain parties from Huntingdon county have purchased a site for a large steam tannery at the foot of Dry Ridge, on the line of the projected railroad, which they intend to erect during the coming season. This position has been selected with consummate judgment; there is certainly no better site in the county.

—Our town has been bored with legerdemain humbugs. We are sure if a man (a stranger) would start some kind of a lottery, making the highest prize a cake-basket or a barrel of flour, he would get fools enough to buy tickets, who would make him rich in less than a month. The people would not consider them humbugs if they got the worth of their money in new tricks and more of them.

—The weather has been delightfully pleasant for some weeks past, reminding us that Spring, which the poets love to write about, has come again.—The winter of '66–'67 will long be remembered for its severity by those who in after years will love to compare the past with the present. We wish we could say that with the opening of Spring the deadness of business has passed away, but in this particular we have nothing favorable to note. We can only hope for the better.

THE voting citizens have petitioned Court to divide the borough into two wards—the dividing line to be Bath street, running through the Diamond.

Scientific.

Economy of fuel and consumption of smoke.—Jacob Green of Norristown, Pa., has invented a new and useful improvement in furnaces, consuming all smoke and gas without chimneys; it economises sixty per cent of fuel, and is applicable to all kinds of furnaces for manufacturing purposes.

The improvement consists in making furnaces adapted to purposes required, with closed ash pits, in which is introduced a blast of air to support combustion, with jets of steam in close proximity to grate bars, the oxygen of the steam combining with the carbon of the burning fuel forms carbonic acid; in passing through a thick bed of burning fuel it receives another equivalent of carbon and is converted into carbonic oxyd; jets of air are forced into the furnace over the fire, amongst the products of combustion, the oxygen of which unites with the liberated hydrogen, carbonic oxyd, and other inflammable gases, producing a clean intense hot flame; the smoke is consumed and the sulphur in the fuel is rendered harmless, previous to contact with the materials to be smelted or heated, an important item in the manufacture or working iron, steel, copper, glass, &c.

By Mr. Green's process of combustion and construction of furnaces the heat and flame are confined in the furnace, increasing heat without a corresponding increase of fuel. Nothing is permitted to escape but the incombustible gasses; thus the furnace is completely filled with pressure heat to any degree requisite, which is under perfect control in all kinds of weather, the quantity of oxygen and steam necessary for combustion being regulated by valves. This appears to be the most perfect mode of combustion and economy of fuel and heat yet discovered. It is applicable to all kinds of Furnaces, Kilns, Steamboats, &c., and renders chimneys or stocks useless.

Iron can be made from ore with any kind of raw coal, and less than half the quantity used in ordinary furnaces, and of superior quality at not over fifteen per cent of the cost of constructing ordinary furnaces. The ore is desulphurized, deoxydized and carbonized before melting, the sulphur and gas in the coal are decomposed and consumed before contact with the materials to be melted. Mr. Green's improvement in ash pits or cave beneath the grates and free passage around the pit, enable the fireman to keep the fire free from clinker, slate and ashes at all times, without drawing a grate bar to clean the fire box; thereby a regular heat can be maintained at all times; the steam passing between the grates into the fire decomposes and decrepitates the cinder, which is easily removed. It should be seen to be appreciated.

Mr. Green is erecting a large window glass works on his improved plan at Norristown, Pa., for the Star Glass Company of Philadelphia, with four melting and one blowing furnace. Flattening and pot ovens, &c., without chimneys, all supplied with air pressure from one four foot fan at 600 revolutions per minute.

The Poisoned Family in Blair County.

The Whig gives the following particulars of the poisoning of the family of Mr. Young a few weeks ago:

Mr. Young died on Friday morning, at one o'clock, and the news of his death spread rapidly throughout the community. A hundred different rumors were afloat, and the public mind was excited to the highest pitch. It was thought for a while that no investigation would be made by the Coroner although it was strongly suspected that Mr. Young came to his death by foul means.

On Saturday morning Coroner Widensall summoned a jury, and accompanied by Drs. Landis, Smith, Hays and Roller, proceeded to the dwelling of Mr. Young situated about three miles from town, to hold an inquest on the body. A post mortem examination was made and the stomach of the deceased taken possession of. The facts elicited were briefly as follows:

Mr. Young became suddenly ill after eating some cakes supposed to have contained poison, and also the other members of the family—his case was regarded of a more serious character than any of the others; he began to recover and was thought, by his physician, to be out of danger; he took a relapse, and was again very ill—indications of cause—a fresh dose of poison; nature of poison—arsenic—he again seemed to recover and was considered out of danger, when he, for the third time, became suddenly much worse and died; third attack also indicated a fresh and increased dose of poison; again arsenic. The arsenic was purchased at Mr. Jacob Snyder's drug store, by the oldest daughter of the deceased, by orders of Mrs. Young; three papers or an ounce and a half was the amount bought; the purpose for which it was bought was to kill rats. The arsenic was brought home and carefully placed in a drawer in Mr. Young's room, and the package never opened. After the "cake poisoning" the package was taken and burned—one of the family said it was Tuesday of last week, and another testified that it was on some day of the week before. Dead rats were seen about the house; but they came to their death by a decoction of "Costar's rat exterminator," used for the purpose of "baiting the rats or drawing them on." The poison which was said to be in the cakes was mixed with some cream of tartar, in a bottle which was at once destroyed. The attending physician testified that death was the result of poison, all the symptoms of the disease went to show that more than one dose was administered and that he received evidently a dose on Thursday of which he died. Mrs. Young stated that she alone nursed her husband during his illness, and prepared his food.

The jury, after hearing all the testimony in the case, rendered a verdict that "John Young came to his death by poison administered by some person or persons to the jury unknown."

On Monday evening information was made and a warrant issued for the arrest of Mrs. Young and her daughter Maria. The parties were permitted, however, to remain at home, that they might have a hearing before his Honor Judge Taylor.

THE best Mackerel we ever eat was purchased at Johnston & Wattsou's, besides they keep every thing good and cheap. †

In a Tight place.

Professor R. D. Hamilton, the horse tamer, well known in these parts, met with an incident in Chicago, which we deem worthy of publication:

A grocer in that city bought a bay horse, which proved to be a vicious brute and quite unmanageable. Having heard of the professor's feats in the way of horse taming, he brought the animal to the Coliseum for treatment.

At the close of the exhibition, and before the audience were dismissed, the vicious horse was brought into the arena, led by his owner, who appeared somewhat nervous, and accompanied by the horse subduer.

At this point the flooring gave way right above the cages where the lions are kept, and the horse fell through, carrying with him a number of the spectators who could not get out of the way. In falling through the aperture the horse stuck for a time, and was seen hanging by the fore legs and the head, while right beside him hung a little boy, who in a few minutes would have been crushed to pieces. A gentleman rushed forward and plucked the urchin from his perilous position, at the same time giving the horse a push which sent him down to the floor beneath.

The horse tamer was about to commence to manipulate the irritable brute, but before any result could be achieved, the latter made a sudden bound from the hands of his owner, who let go the bridle, and the horse sprang wildly into the circle, among the audience. A scream of terror rose from every part of the house, and this had the effect of still further maddening the infuriated animal, who struggled and pranced from one circle of seats to another among the thickest of the spectators, till he reached nearly to the roof of the circus.

The excitement did not last long. The doors were thrown open and the terrified audience was set at liberty. Strange to say very few accidents resulted, and these not of a serious nature. One man had his shoulder dislocated, and another was badly hurt in the arm, while several were bruised in falling through the opening floor.

Orphans School.

Readers of the Globe:—I thought perhaps you would be pleased to hear a few words in favor of the Orphan's Home, situated in Joysville, Perry Co. I visited the school last week in company with another lady from this County. We found everything in perfect order, and the children all enjoying good health. It really surprises one to see and hear the amount of knowledge that their little minds can contain. They have plenty of substantial food, clothes, and out door exercise, and are as happy as the day is long. They are now under the superintending care of Mr. G. Tressler; he deserves the praise of all good Christian people. Long may he live in the hearts of the Orphans, and the Mothers. Read below the sentiments of a little girl in the school four years old, in her own words.

I am a little orphan dirl,
My papa died in the war;
He used to love his Addie dear,
But now he will never see his Addie more.

The Lawyer in the School Room.

This remarkable little book, by M. McN. Walsh,, A. M., L. I. B., (a New York lawyer), is full of useful and reliable information for everybody, but especially for teachers, school officers, parents, ministers, editors and members of the legal profession. The first chapter, "Of Schools and Governments," is a succient explanation of the different plans adopted by Governments, ancient and modern for the diffusion of knowledge among the people. This chapter, in some respects, is exceedingly suggestive, and not unworthy the attention of our most intelligent and experienced statesmen. It is not imaginative or speculative, but a plain, matter-of-fact statement, which, in spite of its plainness, has, to a mind capable of appreciating the subject, all the charm of romance. This chapter alone is worth many times the price of the book. For sale at Lewis' Book Store, price $1.00.

DR. WILLIAM BREWSTER,

HUNTINGDON, PA,

IN NEARLY ALL CASES OF CHRONIC DISEASE, ELECTRICITY IS A SURE REMEDY, AND IN ALL CASES BENEFICIAL, IF PROPERLY APPLIED. Those, therefore, afflicted with complaints not here enumerated, need have no hesitation in applying, and whether only RELIEF, or a PERMANENT CURE can be effected, they will receive replies accordingly. All communications free.

2 Sore Throat, Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Obstinate Constipation, Hemorrhoids, or Piles, Bilious, Flatulent, and Painter's Colic, and all affections of the Liver and Spleen.
3 Catarrh, Cough, Influenza, Asthma, (where not caused by organic disease of the heart,) Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Rheumatism of the Chest, Consumption in the early stages.
4 Gravel, Diabetis, and Kidney Complaints.

ELECTRICITY

The Globe.

HOUSE PLANTS.—Cuttings of house plants, such as geraniums, fuchias, verbenas, etc., such as every one wants, may easily be grown in the house. One of the best materials for the purpose we have found to be clear fine charcoal dust about like fine sand in the size of grains. Use a common crock; see that it has good drainage; then fill to within half an inch of the top with the charcoal, putting your cuttings in all around and near the edge, with about two buds in the charcoal and one bud out. If you can, get a little piece of hanging moss from the woods, and lay over the whole, letting the cuttings protrude through it, and letting it, (the moss) hang down all over the sides of the crock. Set it on the mantlepiece, or on a little bracket shelf in some part of the room where its height will add to warmth, and at the same time, if you can, near the light; water once thoroughly, and afterwards just enough to always keep it moist, but not wet. The object of the moss is to make the crock ornamental for the time being, and at the same time serve to keep a more even condition of moisture on the outside.

Hyacinths in winter flowering should have the bulb placed so that its base only can touch the water; and for the first two weeks, either place the glass in a dark room, or wrap around it a wrapper of some dark shade of paper. After the roots have started well, take off the paper wrapper, draw the bulb from the glass, and emptying out the water, cleanse the glass, and replace with fresh, soft rain water; replace again the bulb, and set the glass where it will have plenty of light, air and warmth. If possible, never let the temperature of a room in which hyacinths are growing in glasses, go below 35 degrees Fahrenheit.—Horticulturist.

ESPALIERS FOR GRAPES.—Posts should be set apart two feet deep and twelve feet apart. This distance brings the posts between the vines, which are six feet seantling two inches square will reach from one post to the third.

The seantling should be fastened to the posts; the lower bar eighteen or twenty inches from the ground, and the upper bar at the top of the poles six feet from the ground, which is as high as is convenient to reach for the grapes during the harvest. Wires one-eighth of an inch in diameter should be nailed upon the bars, perpendicularly, at the distance of three inches from each other. This method of placing the wire upon the espalier is preferable to the usual method of large telegraph wire, placed horizontally, because, in the winter time, the intense cold contracts the long and large wire so much as sometimes to draw out the posts, at the ends of the row, to which they are fastened.—E. W. Bull, in Mass. Ploughman.

RAISING CALVES BY HAND.—A California correspondent says: "I have taken calves from one to two days old to as many weeks, and taught them first to drink milk warm from the cow. When they are used to this, add a handful of corn meal, (or better still, oil meal,) and stir well while they are drinking. All milk may be withheld at perhaps three weeks old, by giving more tea and meal-barley or wheat meal will do perhaps better than corn. Tea is the best substitute for milk, and should be made from good sweet hay, and not steeped too long. If the calves are troubled with scours, stop the meal a day or two, and give a little new milk. If they are constipated, give a little more oil meal or rye meal."—American Agriculturist.

PASTURAGE OF COWS.—It is well known that Cheshire, England, is a great dairy county. This lies not far from Liverpool. Chester, the market town, is perhaps a dozen or fifteen miles from that city. Most of the land has been under-drained, and top dressed with ground bones, and such land will carry one cow to the acre. Where it has not been top-dressed and drained a cow will require two acres. They use 1,209 to 1,500 weight of bones to the acre about once in seven years. How many acres does it take to keep a cow well in this country? Wouldn't it pay to spring up our pastures.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

WHEN board fences become old and the boards begin to come off nail upright facing strips upon them against each post, and the boards will be held to their place, and the fence will last several years longer.

ALWAYS set a post fence over a ditch or near good drainage, and the posts always remaining dry, will last many years longer than those standing in wet subsoil.

IN laying out garden fruits and vegetables, place everything in drills or rows, that they may be cultivated by a horse, and thus save the expense of hand labor.

PLANT a supply of osier willows on every farm. A rod square will furnish as many bands for binding corn-stalks, straw, etc., as an acre of rye straw.

ALWAYS keep a supply of copper wire on hand, of different sizes, for repairing tools—it is greatly superior to either twine or iron wire.

DIP well-seasoned shingles in lime, wash and dry them before laying, and they will last much longer, and not become covered mith moss.

PHOTOGRAPH
PATENT APPLIED FOR.

Hitherto there has been nothing introduced in way of a Marriage Certificate that has excited any interest or attraction; but the originators of the PHOTOGRAPH MARRIAGE CERTIFICATE claim that they have gotten up something that will be most heartily welcomed by all persons now married and all those who contemplate marriage.

Size and Plan of the Marriage Certificate.

The size of the Certificate is 19 by 14 inches. It contains a beautiful figure representing the union of two hearts. Above the figure is written in beautifully ornamented German Text the words "Photograph Marriage Certificate." There are three spaces in the figure: on the space in the center the Certificate proper is written. The words, "Two hearts in one" form an arch over the Certificate proper, and immediately under the arch there is a beautiful figure representing the joining of hands, and where the centre space comes to a point there is a picture of two beautiful turtle doves. On the space to the left there is a place for the photograph of the gentleman and under it we have the words, "To the Husband," in ornamental text, under which we have selections of Scripture passages addressed to the husband. On the left side of the engraving we have a place for the Photograph of the wife. Immediately under which we have the words, "To the Wife," in ornamental text, under which are appropriate passages of Scripture addressed to the wife. Over the space for the photograph of gentleman we have written in Old English characters, the following appropriate passage of Scripture: "It is not good that the man should be alone," and over the space for the photograph of the lady, we have the corresponding words: "I will make him an help meet for him." At the lower extension of the figure of the hearts, we have the hearts bound together or encircled in part by these words: "What therefore God hath joined together let no man put asunder." The Certificate is so constructed that card photographs of both bride and bridegroom can be inserted without the least possible difficulty. Indeed everything connected with it is so elegant, attractive and desirable that many single persons seeing the Certificate have been so much pleased with its appearance, that they purchased on sight one of these beautiful parlor ornaments.

A specimen copy of the Photograph Marriage Certificate will be carefully put up and sent by mail free, on receipt of the retail price, which is ONE DOLLAR.

Attention, Discharged Soldiers!

The Act of Congress approved July 28, 1866, gives $100 additional bounty to all soldiers who enlisted for three years and were discharged by reason of expiration of service, or who were discharged for wounds received in battle and who have not received more than $100 bounty for such service. An additional bounty of $100 is also allowed to the nearest relative of soldiers who enlisted for a term of three years and who died or were killed in the service, to be paid in the following order: First, to the widow; second, to the children; third, to the father, and fourth, to the mother.

Soldiers' Widows.

By applying to W. H. Woods, of Huntingdon, Huntingdon county, Pa., you can have your pensions increased two dollars a month for each and every child you have, and when the widow has married or died, the children are entitled to the increase.

To all who have brought home the bodies of their friends who died or were killed in the service of the United States, there is a certain amount of compensation allowed you for the expenses incurred in bringing home the bodies of your friends, which you can obtain by making application to me.

Invalid Soldiers, Attention!

Soldiers who have lost both eyes or both hands, $25 per month; who have lost both feet $20 per month; who have lost one hand or one foot, or totally disabled in the same, $15 per month.

Persons who have been deprived of their pensions in consequence of being in the civil service of the United States Government, can be restored to the pension roll by applying to me.

Fathers and mothers who were in whole or in part dependent upon their sons for support are entitled to a pension.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebels acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress ex you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. Store on Southeast corner of the Diamond, Huntingdon, Pa.

LATEST FASHIONS DEMAND

J. W. Bradley's Celebrated Patent

Duplex Elliptic
or Double Spring,

SKIRT.

The wonderful Flexibility and great comfort and pleasure to any lady wearing the Duplex Elliptic Skirt will be experienced particularly in all crowded assemblies, operas, carriages, railroad cars, church pews, arm chairs, for promenade and house dress, as the skirt can be folded when in use to occupy a small place as easily and conveniently as a silk or muslin dress, an invaluable quality in crinoline, not found in any single spring skirt.

A lady having enjoyed the pleasure, comfort, and great convenience of wearing the duplex elliptic steel spring skirt for a single day, will never afterwards willingly dispense with their use. For children, misses and young ladies they are superior to all others.

They will not bend or break like the single spring, but will preserve their perfect and graceful shape when three or four ordinary skirts will have been thrown aside as useless. The hoops are covered with cambic and twisted thread, and the bottom rods are not only double springs, but twice (or double) covered; preventing them from wearing out when dragging down stoops, stairs, &c.

The Duplex Elliptic is a great favorite with all ladies and is universally recommended by the Fashion Magazines as the standard skirt of the fashionable world.

To enjoy the following inestimable advantages in crinoline, viz: superior quality, perfect manufacture, stylish shape and finish, flexibility, durability, comfort and economy, enquire for J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic, or double spring skirt, and be sure you get the genuine article.

CAUTION.—To guard against imposition be particular to notice that skirts offered as "Duplex" have the red ink stamp, viz: J. W. Bradley's Duplex Elliptic Steel Springs" upon the waist band—none others are genuine. Also notice that every hoop will admit a pin being passed through the centre, thus revealing the two (or double) springs braided together therein, which is the secret of their flexibility and strength, and a combination not to be found in any other spring.

For sale in all stores where first class skirts are sold throughout the United States and elsewhere.

PROF. J. H. M'ENTYRE'S GREAT REMEDY,
THE INIAN COMPOUND
Internal and External Medicine,
WILL CURE:

☞ Diarrhœa, Bloody Flux in one day,
☞ Headache and Earache in three minutes.
☞ Neuralgia in five minutes,
☞ Sprains in twenty minutes,
☞ Sore Throat in ten minutes.
☞ Cholic and Cramp in five minutes,
☞ Rheumatism in one day,
☞ Pain in the Back or Side in ten minutes,
☞ Bad Coughs or Colds in one day,
☞ Fever and Ague in one day.
☞ Cures Deafness, Asthma, Piles,
☞ Bronchitis Affections, Dyspepsia,
☞ Inflammation of the Kidneys, Erysipelas,
☞ Liver Complaint and Palpitation of the Heart.

Keep it in your Families—Sickness comes when least expected.

I propose to check, and effectually dissipate more ache and pain, and to accomplish more perfect equilibrium of all the circulating fluids in the human system, than can be effected by any other, or all other methods of medical aid in the same space of time.

THIS POPULAR REMEDY is fast coming into use, for the fact that I cure, free of charge, all these complaints whenever there is an opportunity to do so. As soon as it is applied it almost miraculously kills the pain. I do not ask you to buy before you are certain of its efficiency. If you have an ache or pain, it is warranted to do all it purports on the label.

I do not propose to cure every disease—only a class named by my directions. My ingiment operates on chemical and electric principles, and is, therefore, appliable, to the cure or natural restorative of all organic derangement arising from an improper circulation of the nerve vital fluids.

Prof. J. H. McEntyre's INDIAN COMPOUND acts directly on the absorbents, reducing glandular and other swellings in incredible short time, without any possible danger from its use under any possible circumstances.

This is an internal and external medicine—composed of roots, herbs and barks, such as our forefathers used.—There is a bountiful supply on earth to cure all complaints if we only know what they were.

This has been a great study with the Medical Faculty for many years, to find out the kinds best adapted to the above complaints—how to put them together, and what proportions to use.
